MATERIALS TOWARD A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE WORKS OF RUŽICA POPOVITCH-KREKIĆ (1940-
2011), THE SCHOLAR, LIBRARIAN, WRITER, AND ONE
OF THE FOUNDING MEMBERS OF THE *NORTH
AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR SERBIAN STUDIES*¹

In late November 2015, during my stay in Washington D.C., I had the opportunity to review a part of the archived collection of printed and manuscript works of Ružica Popovitch-Krekić by courtesy of her sister, Prof. Ljubica D. Popovich, PhD. On that occasion, I made a bibliography of Ružica Popovitch-Krekić's works, believing that, although it was not complete, it could be useful for both Serbian and American history and culture. Her memoirs, which can be found in two versions, in Serbian and

English, are especially beautifully written and highly informative. They include the family history, details from the history of Serbia and Yugoslavia, her arrival in the United States, an overview of the American society and culture of the time, her acquaintance with Russian and Yugoslav emigration, as well as her work in the Library of Congress.

Other texts reveal the valuable professional contribution Ružica Popovitch-Krekić made in the reception of Serbian literature in America, as well as the scientific research of important literary topics in Russian and Serbian literature. For instance, her review of Biljana Jovanović's novel Pada Avala (Belgrade: Prosveta, 1978), which was published in 1979, may have contributed to the early reception of the work in the U.S.

Further research can be dedicated to the poetry of Ružica Popovitch-Krekić, but also to her committed work in the North American Society for Serbian Studies (NASSS) and the promotion of Serbian culture in the U.S. As a writer, she had a tremendous sense of Serbian and English; as a historian, she carefully collected various kinds of sources; as a scientist, she thoroughly examined the selected issues. Although published much later after the presentations had taken place, her academic papers, for instance on the history of women's education in Serbia, or on Danilo Kiš or Oskar Davičo nowadays offer a lot of relevant information and useful interpretations.

The first time I met Ružica Popovitch-Krekić it was through electronic correspondence in 2009, and soon after we met in person, in Bethesda, Maryland, USA. I was impressed by her modesty and nobility. I wish I had known then that she was writing literary works.

Poetry in Serbian

- Bogu! (4-6-79)
- Neko je nekad rekao
- Varljiva je tvoja udaljenost (4-30-79)
- Kako da ti kažem? (11-IV-79)
- Dvanaestogodišnjica (Nov 1978)
- U radu ti je prošao vek! (3-29-79)
- Umorna sam da režiram
- Ne zna ni sama (avgust 1982)

Čudno, juče nisam (3-4-79)

Ja nemam više sreće (5-27-79)

Ti ne živiš (5-2-79)

Bože, kako brzo nailazi (3-29-79)

Upoznali smo se pre (11-IV-79)

Molih ti se Bože (4-9-79)

Posle jednog razgovora (4-6-1979)

Počеше sa pitnajima (1-X-83)

Uvek sam mislila (1-9-82, 5.p.m.)

Ležim pored bazena (22-VIII-82)

Ne mogu da saberem (9-XII-81)

Pitaš me: je li to

Ne pišem više (May 1994)

Za svakog se nađe

Odlaze poznati iz ovog grada

Svaki put kad se pogledam

Izlazim sa svetom

Gledam sve ovo oko sebe

Stigla sam ovde

Kada bih mogla

Bože, kako ne volim

Sutra letim za Evorpu

Gledam se sinoć

Ne mogu da zamislim

Avgust 2002.

Ne radi mi se više

Sanjam kako ne živim ovde

Poznajem ljude
Nekada, kada sam bila mlada
Neki put mi se čini
Volim onu Aleksinu pesmu
Toliko sam u prošlih deset godina
