- MATERIALS AND METHODS,
- RESULTS WITH DISCUSSION,
- CONCLUSION,
- LITERATURE,
- NOTE (IF THE PAPER WAS CREATED AS A RESULT OF A PROJECT OR FUNDED BY AN INSTITUTION),
- DATE OF RECEIPT AND DATE OF ACCEPTANCE OF PAPER.

Before the paper title, UDC/DOI should be written and the category of paper but reviewers can request a correction. The title should be written in capital letters, bold and below the title after one line of space is the title in English. After the title in English and one line of space, the author of the paper with co-authors must be listed. Authors and co-authors must be written in small letters, bold, and marked with ordinal numbers in the index if they are not from the same institution. After listing the author and co-author, after one line of space, the institutions must be listed in lower case, from which the author and co-authors are. The name of the institution, address, place with postal code and country are stated.

The title is followed by a summary. The SUMMARY is separated from the title with one free line and the text of the summary is also separated with one free line. At the end of the summary, keywords are listed, at least five keywords that are related to the paper and are used to find paper on the Internet and does not contain words from the title.

Before the text of the introduction, the number 1. and INTRODUCTION must be written in capital letters, in bold. Every chapter must be written in this way. Each chapter is indexed by ordinal numbers but not under chapters whose titles are written in lower case. The cited authors are listed in the paper by writing the last name and the first letter of the author's name in parentheses, putting a comma and then the year of publication (TURAN J, ET AL. 2012). For several citations of publications by the same author from the same year, the letters of the alphabet are placed in order after the year. Co-authors are listed with abbr. et al. followed by the year of publication. The literature is cited as follows: [1] TURAN J, ET AL. (2012): Effect CORN. CONTEMPORARY AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERING, 38 (1): 21-29, NNDPT, Novi Sad, Serbia.

Papers that contain valid results from research (where specific research results are presented) have the advantage of being accepted for publication in a journal! It is recommended to cite relevant literature in the papers.

All papers that have been published can be found in electronic form on the website <https://scindeks.ceon.rs/journalDetails.aspx?issn=0350-2953>.
